2nd Quarter General Assistance

This quarter we were able to help each one of those who requested help, including individuals, families, and organizations. Read below to find out how, together with all of you, we are making a real difference.

Carla & Ramona DelaRosa are sisters, young women who, between the two of them, have four children. Both women were diagnosed with thyroid cancer, as was their other sister, and they have had to undergo radiation therapy treatment. They are both continuing to work, but they are struggling to keep up with the extra bills. We gave them Walmart gift cards to help cover food and basic household expenses.

Sandy Brocamontes is a mother of three girls, who has fallen behind on bills, due to a shortage of hours at her job. She was recently forced to move to a different apartment, due to a bed bug infestation, which also means replacing furniture and other household items. We wrote a check to the complex, to help her catch up on rent, and free up some funds to purchase needed items.

Jazmyn Griego is a young lady who just finished 6th grade with a 4.0 grade point average. She plays for the Albuquerque Toxic, a U14 softball team, and she made it to the USSSA Futures Elite Team. She will be going to Florida at the end of this month to represent Albuquerque, but she and her mother must cover travel expenses. We helped them with a check written to the team.

Annette Griego is the hard-working mother of our young softball star, but she has been struggling to come up with the funds to cover the trip, as well as to cover the cost of deductible on her car, which was recently wrecked. These added costs have put a heavy burden on her already tight finances, and she has fallen behind on a few of her bills. We gave her a Walmart gift card to help cover household needs, and free up some income to catch up on bills.

Erich Von Schuetze is an elderly gentleman who was diagnosed with stage 4 lung cancer just a few months ago. He and his wife live on a subsistence-level income, and they are struggling to keep up with the bills. Pat, his wife, works part time, but has had to miss work to help provide care for her husband. We wrote a check to Presbyterian to help them catch up on medical bills.

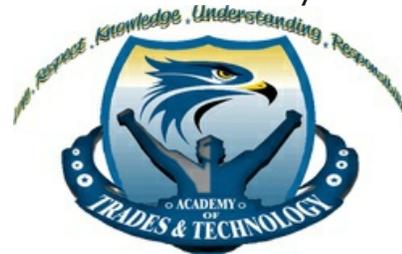

The City of Socorro holds a yearly back-to-school community health fair, which is designed to help families in need of school supplies for children from kindergarten through high school. Inteli-Care of Socorro asked us to join with them in contributing in-kind donations for the fair. We donated a Walmart gift card to help fill up backpacks with school supplies.

McKinley Child Development Center serves low income students in the pre-kindergarten age rate. They are trying to purchase a camera to take photos of the children, their families, their artwork and crafts. We gave them a Walmart gift card to help with the purchase of the equipment.

Academy of Trades & Technology serves "at risk" secondary students, helping them get back on their feet and work toward a better future. Ms. Susan Potts, reading teacher for ATT, requested some help in purchasing graduation supplies. We wrote a check to contribute to this fund.

Cheryl Vigil has been suffering from a spinal infection for the last three months, which has already required emergency, potentially life-threatening surgery. This condition has prevented her from working, as well as her wife, who must take off work regularly to help Cheryl with basic activities and take her to appointments. She was back in the hospital again this week. They have cut out all unnecessary expenses, and her wife is working as much as possible, but they asked for some help in staying on top of bills. We wrote a check to help them keep up with rent.
